Q: Can `IsInRole` be used for more than the currently logged in user? I am using `IsInRole` for a page that is restricted to members of a certain role. `IsInRole` is intended to be used for a login requirement, but how do I make it call for members of two separate roles? A: `IsInRole` will not only return true for the currently logged-in user, but for any user that is in the specified role, so that's why you're having the issue. Using the `IsInRole` function, you could do something like this: `var userRoles = new List { new ClaimsIdentity(Context.User.Identity), new ClaimsIdentity("SomeRole") }; var isInRole = userRoles.Any(userRole => userRole.Identity.IsInRole("SomeRole"));` OR `var isInRole = userRoles.Select(userRole => userRole.Identity.IsInRole("SomeRole")).Any();` You can also use the `RoleManager` to retrieve the `Roles` collection, like so: `var roleManager = Context.GetOwinContext().Get(); var role = roleManager.FindRole("SomeRole");` And then to add it to the claim, if it does not exist yet, simply do so, like so: `var userRole = Context.User.Identity; var isInRole = role.Users.Any(user => user.Identity.IsInRole("SomeRole")); if (!isInRole) { userRole.AddClaim(new Claim("SomeRole", "SomeRole")); }` The Steelers' Nittany Lions contingent was led by three players – linebacker Ryan Shazier, cornerback Deshaun Watson and running back Juwan Thompson – who received all-conference honors from the league's coaches and Football Writers Association of America. The trio of players took home the MAC honors as Shazier was the unanimous pick as the league's defensive player of the year. Watson was selected as the offensive player of the year and Thompson was the special teams player of the year. Shazier and Watson were named first-team all-conference, while Thompson was a second-team choice.
