Here are the 10 technical features we think will have the biggest impact on the style of play in FIFA 22:

10. "HyperMotion Technology": Real-life movement and animation data is now collected from 22 players as they play a complete football match in a motion capture suit, simulating a complete game and allowing for accurate and natural movement.
9. Improvements to the game engine: Combined with the Real Player Motion engine, the Naughton Engine has been further enhanced with technology which simulates collisions and hard tackles, the feeling of muscle memory and the speed and pace of playing.
8. Key to the game: Player skills are now more closely connected to their performance with the new 'Passing Accuracy' and 'GoKicks' systems.
7. Enhanced ball physics: Improved player control, improved ball movement, improved ball and coat of arms collision, and new animations for strength and stamina are used to increase the ball's freedom to move in a player's control. New teams will also require improved ball control, with the player now more naturally controlling the ball with less need for free kicks.
6. Quality of passing: Feedback from players has been sought to improve the context of the passing and receiving of the ball, and the player feels more natural in his ability to control the ball, find space and score goals.
5. Player physics: Players have been completely rebalanced to make them more realistic. They now make more realistic forward and backwards movements, face more realistic collisions, are more capable on the ball and are faster. The contact physics allow players to lose control of the ball during an aerial duel, and will take more contact for a headed shot to crossbar. The new system will also allow players to freely sweat and run.
4. Player abilities: Virtual Teammate (VTM), Player Intelligence (PI), and Tackles and Aerial duels have all been increased with the introduction of new Engine. VTM will allow for more realistic Player Behaviour and Decision Making. PI will be used to provide players with the knowledge and information to make decisions during a game, whilst Tackles and Aerial duels will increase the physicality of the game and will be more accurate.
3. Player Impact Engine: The movement of players on the ball, their hitting and the weight of players have been improved to add more realistic physical performance to the game. In order to improve these events the impact of tackling has been increased, and there
