Description: T Splines for Rhino 5.rarQ: Android studio does not recognize my classes/methods? I am trying to follow this guide to communicate between my app and other app: I have followed all the steps, the only change i have made is that my app is a library one. I have a main library with an activity in it that has this class: public class MainActivity extends AppCompatActivity implements WifiDirectActionCallback { @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); TextView tv = (TextView) findViewById(R.id.textView2); Button button = (Button) findViewById(R.id.button1); button.setOnClickListener(new View.OnClickListener() { public void onClick(View v) { if (WifiDirect.isWifiCallingSupported()) { WifiDirect.connect(v); } } }); tv.setText("Charging..."); } And this class: public class WifiDirect { private static Context context; private List devices; public void connect(View v) { WifiManager wifiManager = (WifiManager) context.getSystemService(Context.WIFI_SERVICE); wifiManager.startScan(); wifiManager.connect(); } public void disconnect(View v) { WifiManager wifiManager = (WifiManager) context.getSystemService(Context.WIFI_SERVICE); wifiManager.stopScan(); wifiManager.disconnect(); Toast.makeText(context, "Disconnected", Toast.0cc13bf012

In case of any problems feel free to contact us via email:Custody of the Enemy Act The Custody of the Enemy Act was an Act of Congress of the United States (38 Stat. 208) signed into law on February 27, 1918, drafted in response to the war raging in Europe and ongoing conflict on the U.S. home front. The Act allowed for the internment of German and German-allied aliens of enemy nationality during World War I in order to prevent them from aiding the enemy in prosecuting the war. The Act did not specifically mention Japanese subjects, but applied the same policies. Congress passed the Act on June 5, 1917, six months before the United States entered World War I, which required President Woodrow Wilson to sign it. The Act only applied to all enemy nationals from those countries that were enemies to the United States, even if that group also included citizens of the United States. It further required the Surgeon General to compile the required census of the enemy aliens to determine which ones were to be interned. Many of the enemy aliens were United States citizens or residents, and some of them were even American-born German nationals. Interning them allowed the United States government to restrict their movement and activities. The Act provided that the aliens were to be supervised by a special committee, which was given the authority to "maintain a system of custody and control... for such alien enemies as the committee may, in its discretion, select" In the first year the government only interned 17 enemy aliens. In 1917 there were 103,318 enemy aliens in the United States, and at least one member of the German admiralty, Karl Boy-Ed, was briefly interned under the act in 1917. By the end of World War I more than 14,000 enemy aliens were interned. Legality The Attorney General of the United States determined that the Act was lawful, but the matter would be adjudicated in the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court heard the case in 1917 and ruled in Ex Parte Endo on May 6, 1917, stating that the government had the power to detain the enemies of the state and regulate their activities. The Court went on to rule that the government should have reported an enemy's United States citizenship to Congress to determine whether the individual was required to be interned, but had not done so. A year later, the government would report Endo and his wife as enemy aliens to the Secret Service, and
