Selecting tools The tools available in Photoshop are the same as those for conventional Windows programs. Each tool has a specific function and you must select it to use it. The most common tools include the following: * Rectangular Selection Tool: Selects a rectangular area of the image, and tools such as the Move tool let you drag and move it. * Lasso Tool: Lets you draw a line that selects an object or shape. You can then use the Move tool to move the object, or you can select it with the Selection tool. * Magic Wand Tool: Lets you select an object by clicking on a sample of it. When you click on a background, the tool selects the background; when you click on an object, the tool selects that object. * Spot Healing Brush Tool: Lets you heal objects that are red or brown (meaning they have been slightly off the pixels). * Content-Aware Fill Tool: Lets you add content or pattern to a group of pixels that are covered by the tool. * Content-Aware Move Tool: Lets you move an object to a similar location. * Pencil Tool: Lets you click and drag to draw freehand. * Eraser Tool: Lets you delete or erase content. * Luminance

List of Houston Cougars in the NFL Draft The Houston Cougars college football team has had 193 players taken in the National Football League Draft since the NFL Draft began in 1979. Of those, 90 have been drafted in the first round, while 106 have been selected in the second round and 16 have been drafted in the third round, four in the fourth round, two in the fifth round, and none in the sixth round. 32 have been drafted in the seventh round and 10 in the eighth round and five in the ninth round. As of 2018, this list does not include the 2019 Draft. The Houston Cougars have only had two players taken in the NFL Draft first round; Chris Warren in 1979 and David Cornwell in 2003. They have had three players taken in the NFL Draft second round; Ricky Sanders in 2000, Ray Williams in 2014, and Ed Oliver in 2018. The Houston Cougars have had 27 players taken in the NFL Draft third round. The only Houston Cougars player taken in the fourth round is Justin Souther in 1999. As of 2018, this is the Houston Cougars' only first- or second-round draft pick who is still playing in the NFL. First round Chris Warren, 1979 Houston Texans (2nd) Second round Rick Sanders, 2000 Houston Texans (17th) Ray Williams, 2014 Houston Texans (29th) Ed Oliver, 2018 Houston Texans (12th) Third round Javares Williams, 2011 Houston Texans (50th) Brenton Bowen, 2007 Dallas Cowboys (79th) Terrence Frederick, 2009 New York Jets (74th) Brenden Hilliard, 2012 Houston Texans (68th) Matt Leinart, 2002 Arizona Cardinals (63rd) John Jett, 2010 Houston Texans (59th) Matt Urschhauser, 2005 Seattle Seahawks (46th) Matt Villanueva, 2004 New England Patriots (41st) Justin Souther, 1999 Tennessee Oilers (25th) Kevin Smith, 2006 New York Giants (15th) Hue Jackson, 2015 Cleveland Browns (8th) Fourth round Vince Verhei, 2005 Buffalo Bills (85th) Tamba Hali, 2009 Kansas City Chiefs (59th) Mark Crabtree, 2007 New England Patriots (66th) Jamar Wall, 2007 Baltimore Ravens (79th) Joe Perry, 2008 Detroit Lions (51st)

the EU, they will accept all other EU countries as well. A "Prague Spring", or something similar in another name, is highly unlikely. Such a development could not even be made in a secret plan by a small group of Bilderberg members or European Commission heavyweights. It could never be delivered by disgruntled Eastern European populists, who become fanatical about their "independence" when they can not become independent. As long as it is a peaceful evolution, it will be accepted by the majority of the population. It is not so long ago that the most dramatic pro-Russian advocates were Pope Pius XII and a Polish Pope, who both taught the total obedience of Eastern Europe to Moscow. If Russia had expelled Ukraine, as it was threatening to do, people in other parts of Europe would have welcomed a free Ukraine. In the 1990s, the pro-Russian countries of the Baltics and Ukraine were shown to be strong enough to recover independence from Soviet Russia. They made a profit, flourished for a time, and then collapsed. In their case, the anti-Russian elites who had been in power for decades were able to resist the Russian influence. The scenario, which I consider rather unlikely, is that Russia could actually carry out what it had threatened. Ukrainian independence could be gone, as an independent Ukraine would be out of its reach. The area where the EU would most like to go with a "Prague Spring", eastern Ukraine, would be in Russia's hand, with no counterweight from the West. If Ukraine had been absorbed by Russia as many European integrationists (including Putin) have wanted, there would have been a "counterweight" of many millions of European Ukrainians, who would, without Russia, have become a military power of importance with a legitimate claim to a statehood. Many people might not have liked the arrangement, but it could have been better than this scenario. This is why Putin would most likely never allow it. Of course, the most likely scenario of a "Prague Spring" is Russian-German rapprochement. I do not believe that a rising Germany could accept the loss of Ukraine to Russia (which is, of course, a concept with strong echoes of "Greater Germany" ideas), so the two nations would find themselves drawn together, rationally or not. But, as I have explained, that would be a step in
