Q: Constructor function in object class with Javascript I want to be able to do something like this: `function myClassConstructor() { this.prop = 0; } myClassConstructor.prototype = { constructor: myClassConstructor, animate: function() { /*... */ } };` This works (and looks a lot like the construct function in CoffeeScript). But now I want to inherit the animate method from an object, that gets a property from the above constructor. `var myObject = new myClassConstructor(); myObject.animate(); myObject.getProp(); // should return 0 This doesn't work, I get: TypeError: Property 'getProp' of object # is not a function A: Have you tried to make a static method? var myObject = new myClassConstructor(); myObject.animate(); myObject.getProp(); // should return 0 function`

We hypothesized that cognitive decline begins early in the course of Alzheimer's disease (AD) and that it predicts the emergence of disabling clinical features (e.g., inability to perform activities of daily living (ADLs)). In this study, we evaluated the hypothesis that cognitive decline in AD begins during the prodromal phase of the disease and predicts decline in ADL function. We evaluated 250 outpatients with AD, 75 with mild cognitive impairment (MCI), and 145 with subjective memory complaints (SMC), using the Geriatric Evaluation of Cognitive Status (GECS) at baseline and every 6 months until 48 months of follow-up. The GECS was developed to assess functional decline in AD. We used linear mixed-effects models to examine the association of baseline GECS scores with longitudinal GECS scores in the 12, 24, 36, and 48-month time points, after adjusting for age, gender, education, and presence of AD-related biomarkers. We used measures of change to examine the association of changes in GECS scores over time with changes in ADL function. The GECS total score at baseline predicted decline in ADL function over time. Each additional point on the baseline GECS total score was associated with a 0.11 (95% CI: 0.02, 0.20) decline in ADLs over time, even in individuals with no cognitive decline or MCI. Decline in the GECS total score over time was associated with decline in ADLs. Decline in the GECS total score was associated with decline in ADLs, even in individuals with no cognitive decline or MCI.PENN STATE'S 2018 SCHEDULE COMES OUT AND IN DATABASE The schedule was officially released this morning and the 2019 schedule is here.
