Rails is not using the config.assets.compile = true environment variable in development mode, therefore some assets are not being compiled. This error happens when you try to generate a new stylesheet with "rake assets:precompile". I have done the following config.assets.compile = true config.assets.precompile += %w(styles.css) I can then successfully use rake assets:precompile and rake assets:precompile RAILS_ENV=production. I tried adding config.assets.compile = true config.assets.compile = false config.assets.precompile = false But with the combination of any of those options, rake assets:precompile isn't working. How can I get rake assets:precompile to compile stylesheets without getting an error or not showing any output. A: To add the stylesheets to the compilation pipeline you can run: rake assets:precompile
