The game is made exclusively with Unity and the development is ongoing. I want this game to become available for everybody. So, I'd appreciate your feedback. Thank you for choosing my game! Also, thanks for trying Darkcrusade! Read our blog: Follow us on Twitter: Contact us via e-mail: [email protected] Where the Darkness Spawns? Alarming preview of Dark Crusade showed in the video For two weeks, you`ll be able to test the speed of the game development thanks to the Early Access platform. We`ll be uploading an automated build of the latest version very often and it will be possible to download a demo and, if you choose, a key-code to join the game alpha. The Early Access will be released on Steam. During this phase, we`ll have an additional chance to find the way to the common interface. This is where a series of settings will be combined, such as a game clock and the possibility of a manual reload of previous games. A manual reload will allow you to continue where you stopped and, when time runs out, will you have to start the game from the beginning. This will give you a chance to test the game and its functionality with your feedback. Current state

What's new:

Wednesday, August 31, 2014 But I am not always there. I may be distracted by shallow fears of running the rat race, of having money, but in my life as a 'stay at home mom' I am there for my son daily whether I feel like it or not. He is the main focus of my life. So as my case of the flu was lingering without rain in the forecast, this fatigue was a little more humanly accepted. I had my boys, Woody was an absolute joy to have with the best boy radar I've ever met and my older son Milo was always a grounding presence who was a real kid as opposed to those teens I am apt to turn to when my life feels very adult-centered and other foddors of mine (my mother for one) might say 'it's just that age' when I question their motivations. So here is this 39 year old woman with a very sweet 6 year old in the morning wanting to help out any way she possibly can in order to keep her summer project alive (read: keep her son in dancing lessons). She is exhausted all day.... She is exhausted at night because her son needs her attention but it's often self-focused. She does her best. In this case, this is not the time to enable her. And she and I are living in a world where encouragement means 'I need a break from what it is you are doing and I'll give you one if that's what it takes'. This is a teaching moment if ever there was one. It's a moment to hit the pause button and remember that she is already doing this 24/7 and asks what we can do for her that we do not already do. After a pause, I grab a third set of hands and start dancing. This means some twenty or so dancing and singing mothers are busting a move to the song 'who you are' by Gary Jules. The first time I sing this song with her son, I thought, 'this is so hard to sing' but Woody loved it and joined in. We dance so hard that I spin around and around and around, laughing so hard that my boobs hurt and my feet and my back ache. I guess this is one of those moments when I don't care that nobody is around to see me. This is a time to grin and get wildly into the spirit of the music, the dancing and the joy. Wednesday,
