A combination of role-playing and racing, of course! You play as the mechanic who checks and fixes the car, so you have the option to roam around the world at any time, once you have started a race. You can choose your car, and you can adjust its performance by performing the mandatory servicing. You can find cars and campsites at different locations - roads, campsites, garages and mines. If you perform a mandatory service while you are located in a campsite, the next time you enter this campsite, your vehicle will perform the mandatory service. Once you have performed the mandatory services for every vehicle in the world, you may then start a race with that vehicle at a campsite. Every vehicle you have performed the mandatory service for will be on the race list, so you may choose the vehicle you wish to use for this one-time race. Each race may have several objectives, which you may choose to complete using the available funds. For this contest, we are implementing a financing system with a borrowing limit of $4000. If you reach the limit and don't have enough cash to perform the mandatory service, you may have your vehicle towed to a garage, after which you can choose a new and faster vehicle to enter the race, but you lose the old one. Recommended By Curators "Take Me Home is a fun, free-wheeling odyssey through an incredible fantasy world where you'll spend your time racing, racing, and racing some more. In this game you choose what kind of truck you'll use (horse-drawn carriage, stagecoach, or motorized vehicle of some sort), what kind of job you'll take on (postal delivery, delivery of new gas stations, or more), and where you'll do your deliveries (fields, towns, villages, or the cities). Wherever you go, you can add to your auto fleet of vehicles - you can even customize them to your liking. And while you're racing, you can collect coins, which, in turn, can be used to buy new trucks. Imagine Free-Wheeling in a post-apocalyptic world where you can drive a shiny, new American-made car and race on real asphalt with other players." -Jeremy Parish, Senior Gameplay Designer Suggestions & Ideas You will find the "Take Me Home" project very addictive and entertaining. Have you ever seen an impossibly cute and beautiful angel that can be your sister or your niece or even just your best friend? Of course not, because angels do not exist. Until now. Or so you would think. In a world ruled by technology, where chaos takes over every aspect of life, only one saving grace remains. An angel. This year's Queen Elizabeth is an angel who rules with an iron fist and blood dripping from the tips of her sharp wings. Now the citizens of the kingdom need a savior, a champion. But a hero doesn't exist in this world. A new kind of hero is born, he doesn't come from one world but another. And from the worst hell on earth to the best paradise ever created, this is what he goes through in a very short space of time. A 20 years old white-haired guy, who is as strong as he is fragile. This guy is named Alex and he is an exile. But wait, don't you think it's strange that Alex is the protagonist and he doesn't even want to be a hero? He just wants to go back to the normal life. He wants to live his life. He wants to finish school, have fun, go to parties, date and fall in love. Well, not really. He just wants to survive. To survive you need your wits, your reflexes, your endurance, and your strength. He is a combination of them all. And with his personality traits you are in for a good time with this character. He is: funny, serious, sensitive, silly, brave, full of envy, different, a sociopath, hyperactive, selfish, charismatic, moody, and a lot more. And if you find him cute, don't worry, he's not the only one who thinks so. But if you meet him he's gonna change your mind. Please note: The following content was originally posted on our Facebook page in April and was later translated to English. In addition, the game is also available in Japanese. A free-to-play mode has also been added. Anyway! (□□□□) An indie game made by four small companies collaborating on the original anime Dies!

You know the story: Alex goes into the game world, where he is dressed as a guy, the player and the main character goes out of the house, and

You are the General Manager of Fernbus, a medium-sized German company that's just signed a huge contract with a tourism agency - "Turistbus." All Fernbus employees will be put on the spot as a worldwide tour for your new customers begins. There's just one problem: Fernbus is short-handed, and none of the drivers want to drive a tour bus. "But we need drivers!" you think. You see the potential of tourist buses: They bring in revenue, they appeal to customers who'd never consider using a real train or plane, and they're easy to drive. I hope that Fernbus will soon be a valuable partner of the Department of Tourism, and that the association will bear many thousands of happy customers. If it's not, I want you to know that I put in my best effort. So If I have: Goto Page1; //do something Goto Page2; And this is being done in 2 different classes Now, I have already googled around a lot and found the solution of doing this: Goto Page2; var1 = 0; var2 = 1; if(var1 == 1) { Goto Page1; } else { Goto Page2; } Now I have problems using this as it is a huge blob of code, and it has also problems with Plnvoing.
