I have not seen this issue and I suspect that Outlook may be forwarding your copy to a different server. You may try the following procedure: Check the BCC email address for the copied mail. If it is ok, then there is nothing wrong with your original email. If you have a different email that you can use as a forward to the BCC, then use that email, and you should see the email you sent. You may also want to send a copy to support@microsoft.com T-cell antigen receptor-induced activation of NF-kappaB and the NIK/IKK/IkappaB pathway. The activation of nuclear transcription factors NF-kappaB and AP-1 by T-cell antigen receptor (TCR) stimuli is well documented and the early steps of the signaling pathway are now in the literature. However, the transduction of the signals from TCR to NF-kappaB through the IkappaB kinase (IKK) and the role of other signaling molecules in this transduction still remain to be elucidated. Here, we show the upregulation of IkappaB kinase activity following TCR engagement using the weak stimulation by anti-CD3 in the absence of anti-CD28. The IkappaB kinase and its substrate, IkappaB, were constantly present and phosphorylated even under unstimulated conditions. However, they disappeared after 12 h of stimulation, and these events were correlated with the degradation of NF-kappaB p65 subunit. The reappearance of IkappaB and de novo phosphorylation of IkappaBalpha was blocked by NIK inhibitor which in turn blocked NF-kappaB activation. The results suggest that TCR signals are mediated to NF-kappaB through NIK/IKK/
