In 2019 TIAA reported over $3.1 trillion in AUM, 37,000 financial advisors and nearly five million employees. With over $2.7 trillion in assets under management, the firm had $17.4 billion in earnings and $319.8 billion of total assets as of October 2018. History In 1949 TIAA and its business school business partners founded the College Retirement Equities Fund, which later became the TIAA-CREF. In 1963, the company launched a second company, Retirement Systems, Inc. (RSI). In 1968, together with Standard & Poor's and Merrill Lynch, TIAA created a group of companies called Mutual Companies. In 1980, Retirement Systems, Inc. (which had been acquired by Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States in 1969) changed its name to TIAA-CREF. In 1994, TIAA International was created to increase the company's international and cross-border exposure. In 2000, the company launched the NationsBank TIAA Retirement Savings Plan for U.S. employees and its first public municipal plan for cities and counties in the state of Washington. Also in 2000, TIAA, together with Veritas Partners, provided $120 million to Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette to establish the Donaldson Lufkin Jenrette Alliance, which now operates as U.S. Bancorp Piper Jaffray. In 2002, TIAA acquired RiverSource ValueAdvisor, an Internet-based portfolio service based in San Francisco, that at the time had $5.6 billion in assets under management (AUM). In May 2003, RiverSource and the International Paper Retirement Plan became the first

Zemansyk, Sister's Serenade Sister's Serenade is a 1941 American musical comedy film directed by Jacques Tourneur, and produced by Edward Small and William Fox. The film stars Ginger Rogers and Myrna Loy as sister performers in an opera house. It was filmed in 7th and 9th Productions' studios at Warner Bros., and was made with working titles The Heiress and Brother's in Law. As with many Warners films of the period, a remastered version was released theatrically in September 2008. Plot Sister Nora Dean (Ginger Rogers) is a Broadway star who insists on being taken seriously as a prima donna and won't have anything to do with her sister, Sister Ida, (Myrna Loy), a singer who got into show business because her family couldn't afford the dowry for her to be married. Nora nevertheless does her best to help Ida. Their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dean (Spencer Charters and Beat e79caf774b

Does.Mr. Market Extends Legal Help to Registered Players Don't let gambling companies be your lawyer Receive the latest local updates in your inbox The future of gambling has only one hard-and-fast rule: Do it legally. So the law firm of Billy & Victoria Martin, based in Las Vegas, don't seem too upset by the recent power play by the American Gaming Association, the powerful trade group that represents casino operators. Federal Judge James Mahan last week upheld the federal government's ban on online sports betting, an interpretation of a 1992 law that the association has tried to overturn. But the judge's opinion is just an opinion, and not a final decision. So if you don't like it, then the association has a simple solution: Don't bet online. Problem is, from the Martins' perspective, that's not a very good solution. "The AGA should have no involvement in setting your online wagering options," they said. "You can't be the books and the players at the same time. That's the idea. You are supposed to compete and use your independent judgment, especially when it comes to the offering of services." That should be a good point for gamblers and for the Martins' law firm, which specializes in helping them deal with the ire of those overseeing wagering. The law firm was created by William Martin, a former U.S. Attorney. His son, Thomas, has been a longtime and helpful counsel for the gambling industry in other cases, including the now-closed Casinos of Washington case. It's hard to know how many of the casino operators pay for the Martins' legal service, but the Martins' case docket lists casinos including the Trump Plaza, Empress Casino, Imperial Palace and Hooters as clients. Before opening a new casino, they have to get a license from the Nevada Gaming Commission. If those casinos face any trouble -- and after the federal court ruling on online betting, that seems possible -- it might be useful to have lawyers who specialize in avoiding that sort of trouble. "The message is, if you're a gambling industry player, don
