Ziggurat (GOG).Motherhood and the subsequent care of one's children becomes a mother's primary purpose in life. This relationship must be strong, patient and loving in order for the baby or children to have a good prognosis. Furthermore, the relationship is enhanced when the baby or children are physically close. Mothers constantly strive to make their home a place the children are happy in. In addition to creating an environment that is homey and secure, the home should also be aesthetically pleasing. Mothers typically desire a home that will be appealing, comfortable and safe for their children. In order to achieve a home of these merits, many different components need to work together efficiently. One of the main considerations in decorating a baby's nursery are the colors that are used in the room. The walls are typically painted in soft colors such as blues and greys, with other colors being used to accent the room. An essential component of a nursery is toys, which can be expensive or children can run away with them. To combat this problem, nurseries often have storage areas such as toy chests where children can keep their toys, with certain toys being locked to prevent children from running away with them. In addition to simple toys, nurseries are typically furnished with a crib to provide safety and comfort to the child. A crib normally includes a mattress for the child, pillows for the head, and a changing table where the mother can change the child's diapers or change the child into clothes. In the past, nurseries have been designed to provide
