Q: How to install an application in user folder after cloning a git repository I have a web server on a cloud, and I would like to install a web application on it. I cloned a git repo: git clone and cd into it, I have tried installing this app into /home/me/myapp, but it still needs to be configured in the user's.conf/myapp.conf. Is there a way to install the app into the user's home folder (I mean the folder the user takes to be his "own")? A: Use git clone git@github.com:nyir/my-cool-web-app.git This will clone the remote repo into the local folder. If you don't want to modify the source code, you can add the branch or tag to your local repository: git clone git branch my-new-branch # To switch from one branch to another You can also clone it into another directory git clone myapp # then cd myapp, and use git pull command User Sign-In It is easy and secure to log-in to your ConsumerPortal account.
