Ornatrix 2.0

Download

In this article, we show how Ornatrix can quickly and accurately create hair strands that are heavily textured or painted, as well as how Ornatrix can be used to integrate texture into meshes. Like the Hair and Haze node-based tool, Ornatrix's Hair and Haze node-based tool is a potent and efficient hair creation application. The interactive results preview lets you see the results of your hair creation workflow at any stage of the work flow, and export the hair to Max for visualizing. In this tutorial, we create distinct hair strands that can be easily modified and used for creating rich and realistic hair and fur effects for you to use within your projects. As always, Ornatrix supports real-time data exchange. We will use hair that comes from the Hair and Haze node-based tool and we will rig it so that it will be easier to apply our effects. Then, we will create the tutorial as it is shown. In this Ornatrix tutorial we are showing an interesting technique for creating rich highlights for real-time hair processing. We use the Hair and Haze node-based tool to create a nice lifelike look, and then we use the Wrap node to wrap the whole hair around the face, so it matches well with the reference image for the final render. In this article, we explain a workflow for creating realistic hair in Cinema 4D using Ornatrix, a powerful combination of a hair simulation application and a 3D visualization application to easily create hair. Moreover, the integration with Ornatrix is seamless. You will have a 3D visualization of the final hair and a material. The hair properties can be changed to fit the scene and the look you want to achieve.

Ornatrix 2.0

A common commensal of Utetheisa ornatrix and Phyllis cunicularis is the carpenter ant Camponotus floridanus (Buckley) (Hymenoptera: Formicidae) (Figure 8) in Gainesville, Florida. Adult ants sometimes feed on plant parts and carry eggs and larvae to the nest, store excess honeydew, and protect the larvae from predators. Camponotus floridanus can both predate and parasitize Utetheisa ornatrix and Phyllis cunicularis (Buckley). Beck (1957) and Beck & Vaughan (1962) reported Camponotus floridanus to occur in nests of Phyllonorycter giraudalis (Clemens), Phyllonorycter melicerta (Schrank) (Lepidoptera: Gracillariidae), Phyllonorycter fluctuata (C. Felder), and Phyllonorycter splendidula (C. Felder) (C. Felder, 1867), of Utetheisa ornatrix, and in nests of Phyllis cunicularis from Arizona, Ariz. (Hebard, 1972, 1977). Camponotus floridanus can both predate and parasitize Utetheisa ornatrix and Phyllis cunicularis. Parasitoids: Crotalaria lanceolata and Crotalaria pallida both have extrafloral nectaries that are often visited in the Gainesville, Florida area by aggressive Florida carpenter ants Camponotus floridanus (Buckley) (Figure 8), and red imported fire ants Solenopsis invicta Buren. Guimares et al. (2006) reported that Utetheisa ornatrix larvae were repulsed from the racemes of Crotalaria pallida by ants attracted to the extrafloral nectaries but that predation on the larvae was rare.
