HDHacker is a lightweight, high-performance tool that lets you create and restore the Master Boot Record (MBR) from a physical drive, the Boot Sector from a logical drive, or any other sector from the disk. It can capture and save about 500 million sectors, regardless of the disk type (FAT, NTFS, etc.). You can freely browse the disk data, copy/pase it on the Clipboard or send it to another sector, including the free space. For example, you can capture the first sector of a disk using the "Scan all in E:" command, automatically save it as an HDF file to the folder of your choice, then create a new hard disk using WinPE. Or you can view the disk information, such as manufacturer, system serial number, capacity, etc., without knowing any details about the sector or the partition table beforehand. If the real sector you want to capture contains only one partition, the program will change it to one with a file system. If you want to capture the entire disk data, including the GUID Partition Table (GPT), the software will create a free space and a new partition for you. You can alter this feature using the "Capture disk" button. For users who have little or no experience with sector or partition identification, this tool is the best choice. HDHacker works on PCs with Windows 7, 8 and 10.2 64-bit versions. You can also use it on Mac OSX 10.10.  Select the disk to open, then select the sector to capture  - By default, the program launches on the sector, which contains the first 512 bytes of a partition, that is, the MBR. - Selecting a logical drive opens the sector, which has its free space. - Selecting an empty disk opens the sector, which has its free space and is intended for the Bios boot sector.  Select the sector to capture to save to file  - To automatically save the captured sector to an HDF file, select the "Save to File" button. - The "Save to File" window will appear, where you can: - Select a folder on your hard drive to save the file. - Select the format of the file. - Change other options. - Click OK.  Select the sector to copy/paste to the Clipboard  - To copy the sectors on the Clipboard, 6a5afdab4c
