“The game is about being in the present, about being in the scene with your team, being into every challenge, being there for your teammates and performing your role,” EA SPORTS Football Club and FIFA 20 producer Oliver Solberg told the Official PlayStation Magazine via email. “This year we wanted to give all players the chance to feel more authentic than ever and to make the gameplay more visceral. We wanted the game to be about a football match in real time, as if you and your team were there. We’ve challenged ourselves to go as far as possible on this journey. This is only the beginning.” As FIFA Football Club Manager, players will be able to optimize players to suit their own style of play. They will be able to create and share their very own training sessions and play challenges for others to join. As well as manager-mode improvements, the FIFA Football Club app now supports club websites and clubs can share out news and announcements. New trophies and rewards have been added, including a prestigious Women’s World Cup in France. The official theme song for FIFA Football Club is performed by Paul McCartney, alongside the classically-inspired soundtrack on the game disc itself. For the first time, the community will be able to coach and lead the club to new heights and become World Champions by playing in the new FIFA UCL competition, in FIFA 19 and FIFA 20. Players will also be able to take on their favorite Real Madrid and Barcelona Legends in competitive match-ups. Are you ready to lead the team to new heights? Developed By FIFA 20 is scheduled for release for PlayStation 4 and Xbox One on August 25th. The FIFA 20 Football Companion App is also now available. # # # CREDITS
