I really hope we will be able to work on this again and we all have a great time Performance of a temperature-increased synthetic reticulocyte based cell-free test for the detection of hemoglobinopathies. A reticulocyte-derived system of erythroid precursor cells has been used as an in vitro diagnostic method for the detection of the most common hereditary red cell disorders. We have improved and standardized the system for the method of incubation of the erythroid precursor cells in the reticulocyte test (ORT). We investigated the correlation between ORT and the radioimmunoassay (RIA) for the quantitative measurement of HbF, quantified the reticulocyte count, cell volume, and the amount of HbF in a series of samples of patients with sickle cell disease (SCD), with certain other hemoglobinopathies, and with a group of healthy individuals. The total reticulocyte count correlated well with ORT ($r = 0.94$). The reticulocyte test could discriminate between patients with SCD and other patients with hemoglobinopathies. The size distribution of the ORT-derived reticulocytes differed significantly from the control.
